

The inspector warns men 'will be taught in fire, blood and anguish' if they don't learn his lessons. How does Priestley use the Inspector as a warning to society?

Write about:

- How Priestley presents the inspector
- How Priestley uses the inspector to present ideas about society

How does Priestley explore the effects of ignorance in An Inspector Calls?

Write about:

- How Priestley presents the characters' ignorance
- How Priestley presents the effects of the characters' ignorance

How does Priestley present the way the younger generation change in the play?

Write about:

- The ways in which Sheila and Eric change throughout the play
- How Priestley presents these changes

Do you think Gerald is an important character in An Inspector Calls?

Write about:

- How Priestley presents the character of Gerald
- How Priestley uses Gerald to present ideas about society

How does Priestley use Birling to present ideas about Capitalism in the play?

Write about:

- How Priestley uses Birling to present ideas about Capitalism in this extract
- How Priestley uses Birling to present ideas about Capitalism in the rest of the play

How does Priestley present the differences between the old and young generations in the play?

You should write about:

- How Priestley presents the differences between the old and young generations in this extract.
- How Priestley presents the differences between the old and young generations in the play as a whole.